

WATER PARK

NOTHING BRINGS PEOPLE TOGETHER LIKE FOOD

Where will
National Landing's
Water Park
take you today?

You decide. Always. Because in a lush green setting in Arlington's National Landing, the choices are many.

Let your taste buds be your guide as you go from down home dishes to cuisine that takes you halfway around the world. Water Park brings together a diverse selection of local restaurateurs and daring newcomers—all vying to pleasantly surprise you—in a unique outdoor setting perfect for meeting friends for dinner, co-workers for lunch, or just to enjoy a relaxed breakfast with a good book. Plus you'll find dishes that fit—deliciously—every type of diet.

So get ready for a trip that you can take any day of the week, no packing necessary. At National Landing's Water Park.

Variety is the Spice of Life

With eleven new restaurants to choose from, don't forget to come back and try some of the many other choices available at Water Park.

Because spicy or mild, it's all up to you.
Now, let's take a trip.

The Sweetest Spot in Town

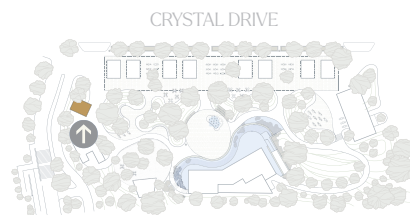

Dolci Gelati is made fresh every day, with new ingredients masterfully blended by Chef Gianluigi Dellacio, the first Gelato Ambassador to the United States. (A real title.) He blends local organic fruits and milk, as well as chocolate from his own farm in Ecuador, to make a quintessentially Italian sweet treat that is remarkably international—much like its location at Water Park.

Pho Wheels gets around. Word has gotten around, too: for spicy, steaming Pho, for tangy Banh Mi sandwiches, Pho Wheels is where you'll find home cooking, Vietnamese style. And now Pho Wheels is at Water Park. A restaurant in an iconic setting, Wheels is still in the name, but they've put down roots in an outdoor setting the neighborhood loves. Meet neighbors and co-workers. But most of all, experience new flavors from an everchanging Viet menu.

Heaven for Vegans

When you start from the premise that you don't need animal products to make delicious meals, you can raise a plant-based menu to mouthwatering heights: exactly what the folks at Bubbie's Plant Burgers have done. Yes, they serve burgers and Chick'n sandwiches, loaded with cheeses and sauces and bacon, yet all of it plant based and all delicious. Which means your friends who may not share your eating habits can still join you for a great lunch or dinner in the fun, outdoor atmosphere of Water Park.

Queen Mother's — KITCHEN —

Fried chicken sandwiches. Eight (!) different sauces. And more, all at Queen Mother's. It's everything you could want, and nothing you don't want—no antibiotics, no pesticides, no growth hormones, no artificial preservatives, flavorings, or colors. All brought to you by Chef "Rock" Harper, James Beard nominee and winner of Season 3 of Hell's Kitchen. Home may be a state of mind, but now it's also in Water Park. See for yourself. Join us for outdoor dining that's different and fun.

We Know What Came First

The egg. A part of, yet different in, every ethnic cuisine. Now, at the Cracked Eggery, you can go from the Deep South to the Far East to New York City—with a different taste each day. Bite by bite, in sandwiches and bowls, the world is yours.

Yet the trip is shorter than you think: the newest Cracked Eggery is at Water Park in National Landing. Have breakfast outdoors, walk to lunch from work, or meet friends for dinner, but come soon. And see what's new in the neighborhood.

The Tropics, Courtesy of Tiki Thai

When you dine at Tiki Thai, you'll feel like the cooling sea breezes of Thailand and Polynesia are all around you. Whether enjoying the unique spices of these sister cuisines in fresh seafood dishes, in their house specialty Chumphon pad thai, or while sharing a pupu platter, outdoor dining is a great way to spend time with friends. And now you can do so at Water Park, the latest Tiki Thai location. Plus, the cocktails and other drinks you get at Tiki Thai can be enjoyed anywhere within the park.

Bombay. Or Priya's kitchen.

Indian cuisine offers a vast selection for vegetarians, and Chef Priya Ammu makes the most of vegan (and wheat-free) specialties with her dosa specialties at the aptly named DC Dosa. You'll find a home-style menu that's flexible, adventurous and, most important, delicious. Now she's brought her specialties to National Landing's Water Park. Bring your friends and discover an outdoor dining experience unlike any other in the DC metro area.

Across The Globe With Humanitarian Food Aid

“Eat for good” is the ethos behind Falafel, Inc., the world’s first falafel fast casual food social enterprise franchise. Partnering with the World Food Programme, when you enjoy a healthy meal here, you help a refugee in need receive a meal, too. Healthy for you, essential for them. And guess what—nothing on the menu is more than $6. So bring your friends, eat healthy and eat for good, all in a terrific new outdoor location in Water Park.

Where Good Works Meet Great Food

And great coffee, too. Brij is a unique café with a social conscious. When you enjoy a fresh panini, belgian waffles, a caramel affogato and more, you're also helping the local Latin American Youth Center as they find work for young people, raise families out of homelessness, and support many in the LGBTQ community as well. And now you can do so in the unique outdoor setting of National Landing's Water Park. Bring your friends and enjoy a feeling of community that spreads beyond the time you're here.
